English 413/513—Theories of Literacy (Spring 2014-125 MCK)

Professor Mary Wood
Office: 445 PLC, Hours M 3-5, W 10:30-11:30
mewood@uoregon.edu

TA: Jenna Tucker
jtucker7@uoregon.edu

Goals of Course: This course will introduce students to the history and implementation of theories of literacy in the U.S., with some focus as well on literacies in global contexts. Students will become familiar with major debates within literacy theory and will learn to analyze assumptions and premises within various theoretical approaches. Students will also learn—through readings, lectures, discussions, presentations, and writing assignments—to connect literacy theories (as well as critiques of those theories) to their own internship experiences in community agencies.

Texts: Ellen Cushman, Literacy: a Critical Sourcebook
Jamaica Kincaid, Annie John

Books are available at the UO Duckstore. Other articles are available on the class Blackboard site.

Course Requirements:

1) Co-requisite: This class has a co-requisite (English 404/604), which assigns internship credit for service work done in the community. One credit is given for every 30 hours of work, which includes time spent training and searching for a position and comes to 2-3 hours per week of service work.

2) Class attendance is mandatory for English 413/513. This is a discussion-based class in which we will be talking about readings and also discussing your internship experiences in relation to those readings. In order for you to get the most out of these discussions, you need to come to class having read the material listed for that day. If I feel students are not keeping up with the reading, I will institute unannounced reading quizzes (I'll let you know if we decide to do this).

3) Journal—Please post a journal entry to the Blackboard site “Journals” section every Sunday by midnight. Each entry should be about 300 words (more is fine and a little less is ok) and should address a) some aspect of the reading for that week AND b) some aspect of your service experience. You might want to connect the reading to your experience, but you don't have to. You don't need to discuss every reading for the week. Discuss at least one in depth, quoting from the text at least once and commenting on the piece(s) chosen.
4) Mid-term Reflection Essay (3-4 pages)—This essay will connect your experiences at your internship site with one of the readings done in class. I will provide a handout on this essay as the time approaches. Due May 5th.

5) Presentation—You will give a brief (10-minute) presentation on your internship, educating the class about 1) your site, 2) your main challenges working there, 3) your main rewards, including what you’ve learned and what you’ve offered, 4) an overview of three reliable sources you’ve researched in areas relevant to your site, with a discussion of how these sources have helped you understand your work. Please turn in an annotated bibliography of these sources.

6) Final Reflection Essay (5-6 pages)—In this essay you will examine your internship experience in relation to three of the works read in class. Due May 11th.

Grade distribution: Attendance and participation—10%; Journals—15%; Mid-term Reflection Essay—20%; Presentation with bibliography—20%; Final Reflection Essay—35%.

Reading Schedule

Power, Privilege, and Discourse

Monday, April 7th—Brandt, “Sponsors of Literacy,” and Bartholomae, “Inventing the University,” Sourcebook.
Friday, April 11th—Internship discussion.

Forms of Literacy: Reading and Science
Friday, April 18th—Discussion.

Culture and Community
Wednesday, April 23rd—Farr, “En Los Dos Idiomas,” and “Language and Literacy in American Indian and Alaska Native Communities,” Sourcebook.
Friday, April 25th—Discussion. Presentations.
Friday, May 2nd—Discussion. Presentations.

Literacy Campaigns, Colonialism, Capitalism, Resistance
Wednesday, May 7th—Begin Kincaid, Annie John.
Friday, May 9th—Discussion. Presentations.

Monday, May 12th—Annie John.
Wednesday, May 14th—Annie John.
Friday, May 16th—Discussion. Presentations.

New Media Literacy and Global Society
Wednesday, May 21st—Video: “Education Nation” (Stanford University Roundtable).
Friday, May 23rd—Discussion. Presentations.

Ecological Literacy
Monday, May 26th—Memorial Day. No class.
Friday, May 30th—Discussion. Presentations.

Wednesday, June 4th—Howard and Payne and Wattchow continued.
Friday, June 6th—Discussion.

Final essays due Wednesday, June 11th, by 5 p.m. under my office door, 445 PLC.