Course Overview
This course is a survey of world literature covering roughly 500 years, sampling various cultural texts from the 12th century to the late 17th century. All works will be read in English translation. There are no prerequisites, and no background knowledge of international literary history is expected. A survey course is, by its very nature, an incomplete project which must be selective. Instead of worrying about a 'complete picture' of world literature, let us instead think of ourselves as explorers or 'surveyors,' using literary texts as fixed points with which we might measure, triangulate, and map out various cultural landscapes. We will read a wide range of different types of literature (sonnets, travel literature, essays, frame narrative, drama, oral and literary epic--just to name a few) across many different cultures (i.e. Turkish, Indian, Italian, French, Spanish, Mesoamerican, English). Throughout the term we will discuss the nature of cultural encounter and exchange. We will practice reading analytically and syntopically by locating cross-cultural issues (such as race, gender, structures of phenomenal experience, ethics, aesthetics, etc.) and putting texts in dialogue with each other.

Learning Outcomes:
The course is built around six desired learning outcomes:
1) read literary and cultural texts with discernment and comprehension and with an understanding of their conventions;
2) draw on relevant cultural and/or historical information to situate texts within their cultural, political, and historical contexts;
3) perform critical, formal analyses of literary, cinematic, and other cultural texts;
4) write focused, analytical essays in clear, grammatical prose;
5) employ logic, creativity, and interpretive skills to produce original, persuasive arguments;
6) employ primary and/or secondary sources, with proper acknowledgment and citation, as they contribute to a critical essay's thesis.

Attendance and Punctuality
Attendance and punctuality is mandatory. You are expected to come to class on time. Each student is allowed TWO unexcused absences for the term. If you exceed the number of allotted absences, your final course grade will be reduced by half a letter grade (for example, a 'B' would be reduced to a 'B-'). Excused absences require some form of official documentation. Remember, if you do miss a class, it is your responsibility to check in and make sure you are adequately prepared for the next session.
Computer Usage
All electronic devices should be turned off during discussion. Please turn off cell phones, laptops, tablets, or other devices before class.

Requirements
--Two Reading Responses (2 pages each) 20% (10% each)
--Analytic Essay (5-6 pages) 20%
--Midterm Exam 20%
--Final Exam 20%
--Quizzes/Activities 15%
--Participation 5%

--All work should be completed on time, and all requirements must be completed to Pass this course. Assignments must be turned in by their due dates, as I do not accept late work. Midterm and Final exams will not be given individually outside the scheduled exam times, except in the most unusual and dire situations in accord with UO policies.

Description of Assignments

Reading Responses (2 pages each): You will write two short responses this term (one response for the first half of the term and one for the second half). For each response, you will choose a passage (or poem) from the assigned readings and identify how your chosen text reveals a cultural issue or theme. For each passage you choose, you must turn in your reading response in class on the day of the assigned reading. Responses should demonstrate a close, careful reading of the text. Assignment details will be posted to Canvas.

Analytic Essay (5-6 pages): You will write a thesis-driven essay which analyzes a cultural issue across two texts (for example: how rebellion is portrayed in Lope’s Fueteovejuna and Milton’s Paradise Lost?). This essay should make an argumentative claim which goes beyond summary or observation. Assignment details will be posted to Canvas.

Exams: there is a midterm which covers material from the first half of the course and a final exam which covers material from the second half. These exams will test your comprehension of the assigned readings and your recall of lecture material, as well as your ability to analyze and interpret literary texts. Questions will range from multiple-choice to short-essay responses.
Quizzes/Activities: Expect reading quizzes and class activities throughout the term. Reading quizzes are given at the start of class. You are therefore reminded to complete the assigned readings, as the best way to succeed on these quizzes is to be familiar with the texts assigned for lecture and discussion. You cannot make up a missed quiz or a class activity. Your lowest quiz grade at the end of the term will be dropped.

Participation: Your participation grade will be determined by your contributions to class discussion and activities. You should come to class prepared. Read the assigned texts thoughtfully and carefully. Be willing to ask questions about these texts and to engage in critical discussion. Students who demonstrate their attentive reading by actively participating in class discussion and activities throughout the term will receive a high participation grade. Students who are unprepared or inactive will receive a low participation grade.
