Course Description

This course provides an introduction to the analysis of comics and graphic narratives in terms of their poetics, genres, forms, history, and the academic discipline of Comics Studies. Our multifaceted examination will balance close readings of primary texts with in-depth research and analysis of the development of the form in U.S. culture. By reading a range of comic-art forms (the newspaper strip, the comic book, the graphic novel, etc.), informed by several examples of contemporary comics scholarship, we will investigate the medium's complex interplay of word and image as well as the role of cultural factors in the publication history of comics.

Course Objectives

In this course, we will work together to apply a range of comics-specific reading strategies. In addition to class time, you are expected to spend 10-14 hours on the course each week. You will critically read and post questions about each assigned reading; you will annotate secondary texts; you will write short essays and a longer final project in which you demonstrate your understanding of course materials and concepts; you will also work with a group in order to present on a designated reading and lead the class in discussion of the work.

Student Learning Outcomes

- Read comics and graphic novels with deepened understanding of their conventions.
- Explore relevant information in order to situate comics within their historical, cultural, and political contexts.
- Undertake critical and formal analyses of comics and graphic novels.
- Employ creativity and interpretive skills to write persuasive, original arguments.

Course Requirements

Participation and Group Presentation: It is essential that you attend every meeting and show up to class on time, ready to contribute to discussion. More than two unexcused absences will result in a failing participation grade. An excused absence requires written documentation of the illness or legal obligation that kept you from class. Repeated tardiness will negatively affect your participation grade. Participation requires both physical and mental presence; if you are texting or otherwise engaged in non-course related activities, you will be considered absent for the day. Similarly, if you come to class unprepared, you will be considered absent for the day. Participation grades are based on three components: 1) attendance—both your physical presence in class as well as your preparedness; 2) contributions to class discussion—these may be questions that you ask, points you make about readings, as well as your contributions to group work; 3) group presentation—over the course of the term every member of our class will conduct a group presentation; we will discuss the guidelines for these presentations in more detail, and instructions are available on Canvas.

Discussion Questions: We have a course discussion board on our Canvas site. You are expected to post regularly to our board based on the instructions on the syllabus and Canvas. Make sure that you complete your postings at least six hours before class.

Reading Annotations and Quizzes: When a digital theoretical reading is assigned, you will be responsible for printing the reading, bringing it to class, and submitting annotations. Instructions for annotations will be posted to Canvas. To perform well in this course, you must complete required readings when they are due. In order to facilitate this requirement, we will have a number of unannounced reading quizzes that may not be retaken. Reading quizzes are an opportunity for you to demonstrate that you are keeping up with the reading for the course.

Micro-Essays: Over the course of the term, you will write three short essays and upload each to Canvas. These essays will help you to develop your ideas and work on writing strategies. We will discuss specific prompts and guidelines.

Final Project: Your final project for the class will be a longer essay with preliminary smaller projects leading to its completion. Your project should reflect everything that you have learned in the course. We will spend a lot of time in class working on this project. You are also expected to spend time developing and writing your project outside of class.

GRADE BREAKDOWN

15% Participation and Group Presentation

10% Discussion Questions

10% Annotations and Quizzes

40% Micro-Essays

Course Policies

Respect	A respectful environment is essential to facilitate discussions and to create a safe space for students to share their thoughts. Part of being an active participant is listening to others' ideas and being considerate with your own comments. At times, discomfort can be productive when our ideas are challenged, but at no time will we tolerate sexist, racist, homophobic, or transphobic comments in class. I reserve the right to ask any student to leave if s/he does not adhere to these guidelines. Furthermore, the UO Student Conduct Code provides clear guidelines regarding student behavior. You are responsible for acting in accordance with this code or you will be subject to disciplinary action.
Academic Honesty	The UO Student Conduct Code defines plagiarism as: "using the ideas or writings of another as one's own." Plagiarism is not only detrimental to your own development as a scholar and a writer; it is also a serious violation of UO policy. Any plagiarized assignment will result in a failing assignment grade, the threat of a failing course grade, and academic sanctions as determined by the Office of Student Conduct and Community Standards. Please contact me with any questions about how to avoid plagiarism.
Assignments	You are responsible for reading and understanding all assignments. I am always available to answer any questions that you have about a given assignment. However, if you ask a question that is clearly answered in the assignment description I will assume that you have not read the assignment, and your grade will reflect this inattention to the course requirements. You are also responsible for noting the word count requirements for all assignments. Do not submit an assignment that does not meet the minimum word count requirements; you may submit an assignment that exceeds the maximum word count requirements if you feel it is necessary for preserving your ideas and argumentation.
Reading	Assigned readings are due on the day they are listed on the syllabus. We will build on the ideas from the reading during class, and a thorough understanding of the reading will be necessary in order to complete the class activities. Feel free to ask questions about a reading if there are any aspects that you do not understand. Do not come to class if you have not completed the assigned reading.
Sensitive Material	Many of the readings for this class feature disturbing language and images. You are responsible for all course readings; there are no substitute readings. Take the time to look over the course material and ensure that the violence, sexuality, and mature themes included in many readings will not prevent you from succeeding in the course.
Contact	I will respond to emails within 48 hours. Feel free to email if you need to make an appointment outside of my office hours.

All information regarding the course and scheduled assignments is on Canvas and the syllabus. Do not ask me to summarize what you missed if you do not attend any portion of class. Make sure that you have contact information for other students so that you can ask questions regarding anything covered in class.

Missed Class

Cell phones are to be turned off during class. If you are checking your phone during class you will be marked absent for the day. For the sake of your grade, please stow all electronic devices during class.

The University of Oregon is working to create inclusive learning environments. I am available to discuss appropriate academic accommodations that may be required for student with disabilities. Requests for academic accommodations are to be made during the first two weeks of the quarter. Students are encouraged to register with the Accessible Education Center in 164 Oregon Hall at 541-346-1155 or uoac@uoregon.edu.

Access

Writing Associates are available to help students with any aspect of their writing for this course. They are peer tutors who can work with you one-on-one on your writing assignments. They are advanced English majors who have been trained to tutor writing. They can help you understand the process of writing about literature and criticism and show you how to make your written work for this class more clear, correct, and effective. To make an appointment with a Writing Associate, go to <http://english.uoregon.edu/writingassociates/>.

UO is committed to providing an environment free of all forms of discrimination and sexual harassment, including sexual assault, domestic and dating violence, and gender-based stalking. If you have experienced or experienced gender-based violence (intimate partner violence, attempted or completed sexual assault, harassment, coercion, stalking, etc.), know that you are not alone. UO has staff trained to support survivors in navigating campus life, accessing health and counseling services, getting academic and housing accommodations, getting legal protective orders, and accessing other help. If you tell me about harassment or assault, I am not required to report this information to anyone unless you request that I do so. I am required to consult with a confidential UO employee (someone with legal confidentiality, such as a counseling professional or a crisis center advocate) to ensure that you are supported. If you decide to make a report, I and other UO employees will help you to do so. My goal is to make sure you are aware of the range of options available and that you have access to the resources you need. If you wish to speak to someone confidentially, you can call 541-346-SAFE, UO's 24-hour hotline, to be connected to a confidential counselor to discuss your options or visit the SAFE website at safe.uoregon.edu.
