Instructor: Corbett Upton
Office: 375 PLC
CRN: 16079
Hours: MW 1:00-3:00
Phone: 346-3961
E-mail: cupton@uoregon.edu

Course Description: ENG 300 offers an introduction to literary criticism and cultural theory. This course will acquaint you with many of the important issues and debates in literary studies and introduce you to various theoretical schools with examples of each type. We will engage two introductory texts to literary and cultural theory as well as explore some of the classic works from the history of literary criticism and theory. Through class discussions, presentations, short writing assignments, and essays we will consider how these critical concepts apply to both literature and culture and our own reading and critical practices.

Course Outcomes: By the end of this course, you will be able to read literary and cultural texts with more discernment and comprehension; you will be able to better perform critical, formal analyses of literary texts; you will improve your ability to employ logic, creativity, and interpretive skills to produce original, persuasive arguments; ultimately, students will gain a sense of the ongoing conversations within literary studies and consider which discourses are most relevant to their own critical interests and concerns.

Required Texts (The Duck Store):
Regular access to Canvas and a printer.

Recommended:
A good dictionary and a guide to MLA format. Active reading will require marking significant passages. Plan to access texts accordingly.

Assignments and Grading:
Attendance and Participation 10%
Daily assignments 10%
Presentation 10%
Writing Assignments 50%
Final Essay 20%

Attendance and Participation: Punctual, regular attendance is a requirement for this class. You are allowed two absences; each subsequent absence lowers your final grade by 1 step (A to A-, B+ to B, C to C-, etc.). You must be prepared to discuss the reading assignment on the day that it is due, and to participate in a respectful and lively discussion. Be prepared to read assigned texts closely, share your ideas, and ask questions of your peers and your instructor. Laptops and tablets for note taking are permitted in lecture, but cell-phone use during lecture or discussion is forbidden. Students using laptops and tablets must sit in the front of the lecture hall. Texting or surfing the web during class time is distracting and disrespectful to your instructor and your classmates. Students who violate this policy will be asked to leave lecture or marked as “absent (unexcused)” for the discussion section in question; final grades will be negatively impacted.

Assignments:
Reading Assignments: All readings are due by the beginning of the class time indicated on the assignment schedule attached to this syllabus. You are responsible for printing all Canvas readings and bringing them to class on the days they are due. Failure to bring the appropriate texts to class on the assigned days will affect your participation grade.
Writing Assignments: Each week you must complete one 300-400-word annotation of and responses to the assigned critical reading. These should include approximately one page clearly summarizing the main argument of the assigned text in your own words (i.e., without quoting the text), followed by 3-5 sentences of analysis, explaining how the reading helps you to answer a question you have about literature/literary studies or how it contradicts, complicates, or furthers your theoretical investigations outlined in Writing Assignment #1. All writing assignments are due at the beginning of class on the due date listed in the course schedule. No secondary reading is required or encouraged, but if you do choose to use sources, they must be properly documented. I am happy to help you in advance of the due date on any assignment. All written work will be graded for form as well as content, so be sure to get help on writing and essay form (including grammar) in plenty of time if you need it. English classes are writing intensive and expect you to write at your best and use writing assignments to demonstrate and improve your writing skills. Refer to the “Essay Checklist” at the end of this document for formatting guidelines. See also, “Guidelines to Writing a Summary & Analysis” (Canvas).

Final Essay Assignment: In this class, you have been asked to assert your independence as a scholar by identifying and promoting what you believe are the most pertinent critical methods and the most “distinctive aspects of literature.” In Writing Assignment #1, you wrote about what questions(s) about literature most interested you and why. For the remainder of the term, you have engaged with a variety of theories that have informed the critical strategies used by literary and cultural scholars and analyzed them, according to your interests as stated in Writing Assignment #1. For the Final Essay Assignment, you will have two options: (A) Write a 4+ page formal essay that revisits your questions from Writing Assignment #1 and/or the in-class writing assignment from day 1 and that explains how your ideas have changed, been qualified, or stayed the same in light of the course material (specifically, the primary texts); (B) Write a 4+ page formal essay that analyzes a text of your choice, using one of the theoretical lenses studied in this course. See also, “Final Essay Assignment” (Canvas) for further instructions.

Presentation: With a group, you will present one of the required readings to the class in order to open up discussion. Your presentation should last about 10-15 minutes, beginning with a focused yet detailed 5-minute summary of the author’s argument and main supporting points. During the second 5 minutes, you may introduce any material you feel would help the class to engage further with the reading. For example, you might invite the class to apply the author’s arguments to a particular text that you have excerpted and photocopied. What methods of reading may the author’s argument suggest or inspire? You might instead choose to place the assigned reading in dialogue with an excerpt from another theoretical or critical essay, which perhaps informs, extends, or takes issue with its argument. What can we learn by reading the two texts together? Alternately, you might decide to “historicize” the essay by providing additional information on the particular critical and social context in which it was produced. Does this context alter the ways in which we read and understand the essay or its methods? At the end of your presentation, you should pose 2 or 3 specific questions you would like the class to consider during discussion. You should begin reading the text for your presentation and meet with your group early in the term. You must attend class on the day of your scheduled presentation. No make-ups will be allowed. See also, “Presentation” (Canvas) for further instructions.

Daily Assignments: For each reading assignment, write one informal paragraph (at least 3-5 sentences) that asks and attempts to answer a question you have about that reading. Keep these questions in a notebook, and bring them to class with you each day. You may miss one written question without penalty. Along with your daily questions keep a vocabulary notebook: write down and define any specific terms discussed in the reading and any words with which you are unfamiliar. See also, “Daily Assignments” (Canvas) for further instructions.

I will call on you in class to read these questions aloud, and they will serve as the springboards for our discussions. If I call on you, and you are unprepared, you will lose participation points.

Policies:
Please review the University policy regarding academic honesty (in Schedule of Classes), which will be strictly enforced in this class. If you plagiarize or cheat, you will automatically fail the course.

No late assignments will be accepted (unless you’ve made arrangements with me well in advance of the due date). Incompletes will be given for documented medical emergencies only.

A final grade of C or better for the course is required for English major credit.
Accommodation: The University of Oregon is working to create inclusive learning environments. Please notify me in week one if there are aspects of the instruction or design of this course that result in disability-related barriers to your participation. You may also wish to contact the Accessible Education Center in 360 Oregon Hall at 541-346-1155 or uoaec@uoregon.edu.

Observance of Religious Holidays: Students who observe their religious holidays at times when academic requirements conflict with those observances must inform instructors in advance of the holiday. Students are responsible for making up missed work according to a schedule determined with the teacher.

Broken Printers & Computer Crashes: These things happen. However, you should always back up your files. If your computer crashes and you are unable to produce a copy of your work before the beginning of class, your paper will be late. If your printer breaks and you are unable to produce a copy of your work before the beginning of class, e-mail it to me. Do not submit it via attachment; simply paste it into the body of the e-mail. This will not take the place of a hard copy. You must produce a hard copy and deliver it to my office no later than the next day. Remember, your e-mailed paper must arrive before the beginning of class or it will be considered late.
