This course analyzes situation comedies about consumer culture as works of art that explore U.S. cultural politics from a queer perspective. Examining sitcoms as inquiries into privilege and inequality, we discuss aesthetics, the economics of the media industries, the interdisciplinary field of TV studies, and the intersections of sexuality, gender, race, class, ethnicity, and ability. We read TV criticism and scholarship in queer media studies to develop critical thinking and writing skills and to work on In the Life.

- Read and study assigned texts in preparation for class. | Prepare questions and comments for class discussion. | Arrive to meetings on time. | Respect your classmates’ space, backgrounds, contributions, names, pronouns, and different frames of reference.

Policies | Your final grade drops if you miss more than two class meetings. After two, each absence will lower your final grade a notch (A- to B+, etc.). All assignments must be submitted in order to pass the course. Contact the professor at least two days in advance to ask for an extension. Essay grades drop a full mark for every day past due. You are responsible for meeting Student Conduct Code and Community Standards.

Texts under study may include nudity, sex, slurs, violence including coercive sex and misgendering, and a variety of sensitive issues such as social and sexual taboo transgression, expressive sexuality, sex work, discrimination, and oppression. If this may present a problem for you, please see me, speak up, +/or register for another class. I attempt to CW/TW, but challenging material will also appear without notice of content.

* Please discuss with me any concerns; absent yourself for trigger mitigation; avoid plagiarism; and let me know as soon as you can of any accommodations you may need.

| Students who observe religious holidays at times when academic requirements conflict with those observances must inform instructors in advance of the holiday. Students are responsible for making up missed work according to a schedule determined with their instructor. | If bad weather or an emergency requires cancelling a class, I will notify you by email or put a note on the door. | Always use your own discretion in class + en route.

| Reading assignments are available on the course canvas site. (Grades are not.)
