COURSE DESCRIPTION:
This course introduces students to ethnographic fieldwork in folklore by integrating research practice with methodological and theoretical readings. Topics include identifying a subject of study, developing appropriate research strategies, initiating fieldwork, establishing rapport, reflexivity, representation, and uses for technology. Each student will conceptualize and execute steps toward a fieldwork project while developing practical skills in proposal writing, observation, interviewing, analysis, documentation, and presentation.

GRADING AND COURSE REQUIREMENTS (more detailed guidelines for each assignment will be posted on Canvas and usually distributed in class):

Nine assignments (45% final grade, 5% each): When possible, assignments should contribute to final project.

Assignment #1: Observation of worship service at religious institution (church, temple, mosque, etc.), due 1/17: Attend a worship service with which you are not already familiar. Write a 3-4 page detailed description of your observations.

Assignment #2: Proposal: research plan for this term, due 1/24: 3-4 pages explaining your research topic, research goals, strategies for accomplishing your goals, timeline, and format for final project.

Assignment #3: CITI test, due 1/24: Students must pass the Social-Behavioral-Educational Researchers learner group module of the Collaborative Institutional Training Initiative (CITI) test required for Human Subjects approval. Go to UO’s website Research Compliance Services for instructions for accessing and taking test: http://rcs.uoregon.edu/?q=node/5. Link on Canvas.

Assignment #4: Observation: group exercise using different forms of documentation technologies, due 1/31: small groups of students attend an event together, document it using different media, and each writes a 2-3 page paper about their experience.

Assignment #5: Interview, due 2/7: Conduct one interviewee-driven audio-recorded interview (30-60 minutes long). Your 2-3 reflexive page paper should describe the interview process and reflect on the strengths and weaknesses of the interview.

Assignment #6: Interview transcription, 2/14: Word-for-word transcription of the interview.

Assignment #7: Reflexive report of fieldwork thus far, due 2/21: 2-3 page essay reflexively considering your research process, e.g. ethical concerns, positionality, and other methodological issues.
Assignment #8: Critical review of ethnography or ethnographic film, due 3/7: Select a folklore study (monograph or film) based in ethnographic fieldwork methods (can be one read or viewed previously). Write a 3-4-page paper in which you explain the author's or filmmaker's fieldwork methodologies. Consider how they went about doing the research and any ethical or other methodological issues.

Assignment #9: Presentation (half of class will present on 3/14, the other half during finals week): A formal oral presentation of the final project accompanied by audio-visuals.

Fieldwork journal/fieldnotes (15% final grade), due 3/20 by 5:00 pm: Students are required to keep a journal of their research this term, documenting their progress, noting details, and reflecting on their strategies. You should write one or more entries per week. Entries should include both fieldnotes and reflections on all significant steps of the research process (making contacts, observations, interviews, recordings, successes, failures, and so on). You may include class assignments in your journal as relevant. Format is up to you, though blogs will not be accepted.

Final Project (40% final grade), due 3/20 by 5:00 pm. Each student will work with me to identify a fieldwork topic and to complete steps toward a fieldwork project during the course of the term. A student's interests and academic/professional goals will determine their choice of format for their final product. Options are:
1. Fieldwork report [10-page report detailing process and goals].
2. Conference-length research paper [10-page paper integrating fieldwork and analysis].
3. Draft of prospectus of M.A. thesis or terminal project. (may be appropriate for 2nd or 3rd year Folklore master's students)
4. 20+ page paper written in conjunction with another course (both the instructor of the other class and I have to approve).
5. Students interested in other options should discuss ideas with me.

Attendance
• Attendance is mandatory and fundamental to your success in this course.
• If you have to miss class, it is your responsibility to obtain notes and materials. If absence is due to excusable circumstances, you may meet with me (office hours/scheduled appointment) to review missed materials.
• Excusable circumstances include: death in family, serious illness, ill dependents, observance of a religious holiday, and other university recognized conflicts. Be prepared to provide documentation.
• If excusable circumstances prevent your turning in an assignment on time, inform me before or within 24 hours after the due date via e-mail, telephone, or a dated note in my mailbox (this requirement will be lifted in extreme circumstances). Papers will drop one letter grade for each day they are late (if unexcused).

Special needs/accommodations: I will do everything possible to assist those with special needs. Please meet with me in the first week of class to discuss how I can accommodate you.
